JOB-WORK OF ALL KINDS

Executed to order, neatly, and on reasonable terms.

It is intended to make the SHELBY SENTINEL a first-class family newspaper, independent of sect or party. Devoted to General News, Literature, and Morality. Appreciating the necessity for a Superior Newspaper in this part of Kentucky, we will use every energy to make the SHELBY SENTINEL acceptable to all classes. To those who have a desire for a paper that will be a welcome guest in the family, we will be glad to receive the assistance and co-operation of the people of Shelby. While the local interests of this section will not be neglected, we will aim to advance the general interests of the State.

The general interests and welfare of the county can in no better way be advanced than through the medium of a newspaper.

Devoting our attention to all topics of the day, we will keep the public informed of the progress of the county, and of the progress of the State. To prevent any misapprehension as to the position which the SHELBY SENTINEL will occupy, we will state that our approval and support will be given to a mild and conciliatory policy, consistent with the maintenance of the Union and the preservation of the peace. We will not support any measure which will result in permanent injury to the country, and we will not support any measure which will result in permanent injury to the people of Kentucky. We will support any measure which will result in permanent injury to the people of Kentucky.

Announcements of Marriages and Deaths published gratis.

Obituary Notices, Tributes of Respect, etc., will be charged fifty cents for each line for the first week, and twenty cents for each line for each subsequent week.

Advertisements under the "Special Notice" head will be charged fifty cents for each line for the first week, and twenty cents for each line for each subsequent week.

All transient advertisements, and all advertisements from a distance, cash.

Yearly advertisements have the privilege of placing their advertisements quarterly. More frequent changes must be contracted for, otherwise they will be charged 20 cents per square for each change. Collection will be made quarterly.

MISERIES OF A BATCHELOR.

BY QUILL.

I wish that I was married and settled down for life,
With a certain little maiden, that I fancy for a wife;
For I am sick and tired of living like a bat,
Up in a room that is by twelve, third story, too, at that;

Where dirt and dust accumulate by inches on the floor,
(For every lazy loafer finds in a peck or more;

And where cobwebs hang around the walls, and mice slip in and out;

And where the bedstead and the looking glass down to the window sticks;

And then the books, I have them, they stare me in the face

From every nook and corner, of this miserable place.
And to think that I must study, when my eyes are all most out.

And so many pretty girls in town are walking all about
With sweet, coquettish faces beaming "neath their Jockey hats!"

And eyes that look as harmless and demure as any cat's, While other boys enquire them like lions about the sun,

Each thinking in his vanity that he's the favored one.
And all this time I'm moping over dry and dusty books.

In a little dark attic, lit alone for rats and rooks.

But I will not stand it longer, I will marry sure as fate,
And rid myself of all these things I do not want and hate.

I'll ask some girl to have me, and if "yes" is the reply
I'll leave her in an instant and to my privacy.

With joy I'll seize each cry that haunts my dusty room.

I'll gather up the things and books, the blacking brush and broom;

I'll pull down every book I see, French, English, Latin, Greek

The lexicons and grammars, that will then appear so meek.

And every shirt with buttons off, old collars, scarfs and ties.

And everything that's batchelor-like, of every shape and size.

And when they're all together stacked, in one delightful pile,

I'll break my lamp above the top and light the streaming fire;

And when the flames are rolling high I'll dance around and yell.

"Murder! I have dreamed at least an hour, and there's the supper bell!"

Capital Story.

THE VOLUNTEER COUNSEL.

John Taylor was licensed when a youth of twenty-two, to practice at the bar. He was poor, but well educated, and possessed extraordinary genius. He married a beautiful, who afterwards deserted him for another.

On the 9th of April, 1840, the Court house in Clarksville, Texas, was crowded to overflowing. An exciting case was about to be tried. George Hopkins, a wealthy planter, had offered a gross insult to Mary Ellison, the young and beautiful wife of his overseer. The husband threatened to chastise him for the outrage, when

Hopkins went to Ellison's house, and shot him in his own door. The murderer was bailed to answer the charge. This occurrence produced great excitement, and Hop-kings, in order to turn the tide of popular indignation, had circulated reports against his character, and she had sued him for slander. Both suits were pending—for murder and slander.

The interest became deeper when it was known that Pike and Ashley, of Arkansas, and S. S. Prentiss, of New Orleans, by enormous fees, had been retained to defend

Hopkins.

Hopkins was acquitted. The Texas lawyers were overwhelmed by their opponents. It was a fight of dwarf against giant.

The slander case was for the 9th, and the throng of spectators grew in numbers as well as excitement; public opinion was settling in for Hopkins; his money had procured witnesses who served his powerful advocates.

When the slander case was called Mary

Ellison was left without an attorney—all had withdrawn.

"Have you any counsel?" inquired

Judge Mills, looking kindly at the plaintiff.

"No, sir, they have all deserted me, and I am too poor to employ any more," replied the beautiful Mary bursting into tears.

"In such a case, will not some chival-

"Nemo," we are glad to hear from you, and will publish your favor next week. "A Serenade," is very good and we accept.

LIKE MAGIC.—The certainty and quickness with which Goe's Cough Balsam cures Coughs, Colds, Croup, and lung difficulties Give to the children when attacked with Coughs and Colds, and rest assured you will find relief at once. Physicians say it is the best cough medicine in the world.

SHELBY COLLEGE.—It is with pleasure that we announce the opening of this Institution in February, when we hope to see a generous support given to the efforts of its principal, who is striving to establish a school of a higher order of scholarship than is usually attained in this country.

FRANK LESLIE'S LADY'S BOOK.—This Monthly for December is as usual well filled with that which the ladies must and will have; fashions the very latest; stories the very best; poetry the most choice; and in fact a goodly collection of miscellaneous matter, "too tedious to mention," and which must be seen to be appreciated. Our advice to the ladies is, subscribe for Leslie.

THE SELMA MESSENGER.—This paper is published at Selma, Alabama, and Robt. McKee, formerly of the Louisville Courier is one of its editors. Those who are acquainted with Mr. McKee as an editor need not be told that the Messenger is an able and spirited paper. We wish it success. The subscription of the Weekly is three dollars, and well worth it.

Rev. W. Pope Yeaman, Agent of the Southern Baptist Relief Association, will deliver an address at the Court House in Shelbyville next Monday, County Court day. Mr. Y. will present the claims of the impoverished South and receive, we trust, from our citizens a generous appreciation of the noble work in which he is engaged.

An article which appears on our first page, headed "the Fair Prayer," is a capital burlesque on an innovation, which even in this age of wonders is startling. There is no intention of irreverence in the article, as it is such a prayer as heathens may have been supposed to offer to their idol gods, and does not want, bear any appearance of religious parody as we disclaim all such intention, in publishing it, and do so publish by request of several subscribers.

Our readers will thank us for presenting them with two of "Quill's" best. It will be seen that our talented contributor writes poetry with as much ease as prose. We owe an apology for delaying the publication of "Old Times" until the departure of Autumn, which detracts somewhat of the fitness of the article. Yet the article is good and may be read with interest not once only, but again and again.

To many of the former students of Shelby College this article will bring memories of mournful interest.

Rev. W. G. Johns.—The Nashville Christian Advocate of recent date, contains an interesting sketch of the life of this good man, written by Rev. J. G. Godbey. We knew Mr. Johns intimately and can testify to his many good qualities. The want of health for many years, prevented him from becoming a preacher of rare excellence. He possessed a mind of peculiar ability, one which frequently gave evidence of its power. He now, after a life well spent, enjoys "the rest that remains to the people of God."

Mr. A. Fulkerson is advertising and subscription agent for the Sentinel at Louisville. Orders may be left for him at the Louisville Journal Office, or with Col. R. R. Bowling at the Custom House, or at the office of the Industrial and Commercial Gazette. Mr. F. is always supplied with copies of the Sentinel, which he will take pleasure in showing to advertisers and others. And we here thank the business men of Louisville for the generous patronage extended to us, and knowing as we do, the acknowledged advantages of the Sentinel as an advertising medium, we hope to continue in receipt of their favors.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.—We call attention to the following new advertisements in this issue. Shelby College. Administrator's Sale of property, of Daniel Shouse deceased, Dec. 20th. Public Sale of W. J. Steele Jr., Jan. 15. Shelby Farm for sale, by J. M. Todd Jr. Owen & Friddle, Boot and Shoe dealers Louisville Ky. Bowles House by Wingate & Threlkeld. Dissolution, Hutchison & Edwards, Bankers.

The Richmond Times complains that crime among the negroes has greatly increased, and that the trials of such offenders consume nearly all the time of the Courts at each semi-annual term. It says: At the last term of the Hanover Circuit Court there were four or five negro felons to be tried; in the Counties of the Northern Neck the average is about the same, and in the County of King and Queen there are twelve negroes to be tried for felony. The evil is becoming a great and crying one, and appeals loudly for the application of some remedy by the Legislature of Virginia.

Moses S. Fields, a well known lawyer of Louisville, committed suicide by shooting himself in that city Monday, Dec. 26. In the same city and on the same day, a young man named Edward Stewart, son of Mrs. Sallie Stewart, accidentally shot his mother. The wound was not fatal.

Judge Advocate General Holt has been denied a court of inquiry into the charges against him regarding the prosecution of the Lincoln assassins, the President deeming it unnecessary to his vindication.

The Ohio Penitentiary contains eight hundred and eighty-two convicts, being about one hundred and fifty more than this time last year. There has been a steady increase in the number of inmates of the institution since the close of the war.

The people of Madison and the adjoining counties are sending their hogs to the South, through the Cumberland Gap, since the decline in the hog markets at Louisville and Cincinnati.

"BUSTED" BANK.—It is said that the negroes of Mobile established a savings bank a short time since, and it got along, swimmingly until a circus came along when the depositors drew all the money out in order to attend it.

AUGUST FAEREL, the murderer of Captain WYLLIE, at Frenchtown, Pennsylvania, has been arrested. He turns out to be a hardened wretch, and is only twenty years of age. He will be hung. He confesses his crimes, and says he has no hope of pardon.

The excavation of the Chicago tunnel has been completed. The tunnel is two miles and seven feet in length, and when in working order will supply the city with the purest of water from Lake Michigan, under which it has been dug.

THE FENIANS.—There is great excitement in Ireland about Fenianism. A rising is apprehended, and the British Government is throwing troops in there very rapidly and have stationed gunboats along the coast and in the rivers. We may expect an outbreak at any time and a bloody "rebellion," or revolution, as the case may be.

A new and fatal disease is killing hogs in Fleming county, Ky. Mr. F. Johnson has lost one hundred and forty-eight hogs, by what he calls the diptheria. He examined them very closely, and found a yellow, thick substance around the windpipe, and nothing wrong with the entrails. A bloody substance run from their ears and nose.

The New York Day Book favors the holding a great Democratic Convention in 1867. It says: "In May or June next, we trust the largest Democratic Mass Convention that ever assembled in this country, will meet somewhere in Kentucky to reorganize the Democratic party on its true principles, and, uniting them to the mast, keep them there till victory crowns our efforts, if it takes twenty years." Good.

THE EVIL EFFECTS OF THE RADICAL TRIUMPH.—Our merchants who are interested in the Southern trade, and whose prosperity is greatly dependent upon its prosperity, will be interested in reading the following letter from Milliken's Bend, Louisiana, published in the New Orleans Crescent:

"No news of general interest save the fact that the cotton crop of this section is gathered in. The bulk of it has already gone forward, and the future receipts from the river will henceforward become much lighter. Madison Parish will make about 4,000 bales as the crop of 1866, against former crops of 60,000 bales. The average yield has been less than one-fourth of a bale to the acre of land put in this season."

The success of the Radical party in the late elections seems to have partially paralyzed the energies of those planters who, have so earnestly but so unsuccessfully struggled the past year to rebuild the devastated plantations of this parish; and the uncertainty of future aid from the moneyed interests of New Orleans, indispensable to future prosperity of the agricultural interest of our State, will deter many from efforts to produce a crop the coming season."

BLOODY AFFAIR AT MITCHELLSVILLE.—In the Banner of Tuesday we noticed the arrest of Charles Goens, a negro who had killed a colored acquaintance named Charles Groves at Mitchellsville on Sunday night, in a fit of jealousy. While Sheriff Barnes was conducting him to a magistrate's office on Tuesday morning at about 11 o'clock, three desperadoes made their appearance, one of whom was charged with stabbing a man some three weeks ago. They were brothers, named McDowell, and had come into the place apparently to brave the law and defy arrest.

The sheriff called upon the citizens to aid him in securing the one who had done the stabbing, but when he attempted the arrest, McDowell refused to be taken into custody, and the three commenced firing upon the officer. A crowd of citizens quickly gathered about, and also began firing in concert with the sheriff. Two of the McDowells fell, one of them killed instantly, and the other mortally wounded, pierced by three bullets. The third fled, apparently wounded. The sheriff was badly wounded, as also a citizen named McLaughlin.—Nashville Banner, 29th.

(Correspondence of the Kentucky Gazette.) Superintendent of Public Instruction. EDITORS GAZETTE: I learn that Shelby and several other counties have recommended Mr. Z. F. Smith, formerly of this city, but now of Eminence, as a suitable person to fill the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction of Kentucky.

I am well acquainted with Mr. Smith, and know him to be highly qualified for the responsible position. He has long been connected with the educational interests of the State, and being conservative in his views, prudent, and energetic in his actions, and perfectly reliable in all the relations of life, I think we cannot commit the great work to more competent and faithful hands.

I earnestly hope Mr. Smith will be selected. LEXINGTON.

Why are your eyes like stage horses? Answer—they are always under the lashes.

For the Shelby Sentinel. SCRAPS FROM MY PORTFOLIO BY "QUILL."

Old Times. I spent last Sunday afternoon in the woods seated alone idly on a log thinking of "old times." I acknowledge, straightway that such occupation is neither practical, business-like, or has any money in it; but I engaged in it nevertheless. I make no apology for feeling a little sentimental too, as most men do, if they have any soul to feel with. So those points are settled. It was one of our most delightful autumnal days and the mellow sunlight poured down in floods upon the fading glory, and departing splendor of the venerable woods; the trees had on their royal robes of purple and gold, and the sound of the rising wind amongst them, was like the surging of the sea. The music of the creaking, moaning branches, and falling nuts and rustling leaves thrilled me with its mysterious eloquence. I felt that the groves were in truth God's first temples and that this was the wondrous symphony of the eternal choir. But all this beauty and melody was tinged with sadness, for I knew that decay had given them their charms. The falling leaves spoke to me of departed friends; their changing color, of faded hopes; and then the past came stealing over my heart, and thoughts of "old times" filled my soul, those good old times "When the joyous hours like birds flew by as lightly and as free."

I forgot the present as I thought of days gone by. I seemed to hear welcome footsteps and see again fun-loving eyes I had missed for years. Forms long unseen rose again to sight; sweet voices long silent, caused my heart to beat fast again, and I felt then that I would not exchange even one of the cherished and beautiful pictures that Memory had hung up in the gallery of my heart, for the master-piece of a Rembrandt or a West. I thought of the days when my pockets were full of "potters" and "white alleys," when I imperilled my neck in cherry trees, and when with a careless band of mischievous boys, with pants and sleeves rolled up, we waded for hours in the shallow waters of Clear Creek, searing the minnows from their hiding places, capturing luckless craw fish and turtles, and their going home with clothes so tattered, and faces so besplattered, as to successfully defy all attempts at recognition; the mill-dam, the foot-ball lot, and the conchunts, came up rapidly one after another, and then I thought of my College days, which are so indelibly imprinted on my heart that death alone can efface them.

We had all gotten to be "big boys" then for we had read the "Gallia est desiva" of Caesar and "Arms virumque cano" of Virgil, and looked upon the little boys with the most supreme indifference; I fancied myself again with "the boys" at recess on the old College campus. The two best football "campers," were "choosing up" for a game, while the "popular boy" was surrounded by an admiring crowd which was discussing the propriety of "smoking out" a "new boy" who with a home sick look, was seated away off by himself; the "best shot," the dandy, the best Latin scholar, the little orator of the society, the poet, the brag and tattler, were all there. As the college bell rang once more, I saw Dan, Henry, Dick, John, Charley, Ben, Lloyd and Bob, and a host of familiar forms pass again into the recitation room, in earnest conversation, and with eyes alternately grave and sparkling with mischief; the slanting rays of the now sinking sun beamed in my face, and made the woods glow with still more sad and melancholy beauty, and I bowed my head and mourned over those days, for the old boys are all scattered now and we shall never meet together on the old play ground again. We all started on the voyage of life full of hope, but storms and shipwrecks have taken place since then and many of them have gone down beneath the waves, while of those that remain, some have made their lives failures already; some have been crowned with success, while on many faces lines of trouble have taken the place of careless smiles.

Bob, as we called him, the genial playmate of my childhood and the frolicsome and happy schoolmate, was cut down in the very bloom of life, when all the world was bright and joyous to him; and one beautiful October day we carried him sadly from the church to the Cemetery, and wept as they lowered him from our sight.

"Little Dan" sleeps in his last sleep under the soil of Maryland, and long may the turf be green above his grave, for we all loved Dan; we loved his noble manly ways, his hearty ringing laugh and his frank, open face, beaming with so much soul and talent. There is a consecrated room within my heart that none can enter; I locked the door when I heard that Dan had bade the earth farewell. One of the old boys with reason dethroned, is slowly dragging out his lonely existence in an asylum cell, others went forth to defend the Southern Cross, and though the loved ones have waited long for them, they have not yet returned; the fragrant Magnolia of Louisiana exhales its sweet perfume above the narrow bed of one, another fell face to the foe, when Donelson was baptized in blood, and still another, "Lloyd," who had twined himself so closely round our hearts and whose College days seemed but the early dawn of a brilliant future, he too, followed that same loved banner till death consigned him to an unknown but glorious grave, and now he slumbers in the soil of Mississippi; the soil he died defending.

I thought of all the boys; I gathered them all once more together in my heart, the scattered living and the dead, and shutting out the years that had rolled between them, now tried to forget the ravages of time and death, and see them just as they used to be; the good old times came back at my bidding, and I was again a careless "College boy" among my careless happy schoolmates. How blest is the gift of memory, that fixes unchangeable on our hearts the scenes of other days, that gives us the past just as it used to be and when all else changes, fortunes vary, and friends depart, still keeps the good old times fresh and green, and just the same. And so I dreamed away that lovely Sunday evening while the wind moaned sadly amongst the trees, while the faded leaves of Autumn floated to the ground, and while waves of mellow, golden sunlight bathed the darkling woods in melancholy splendor.

POLAND'S Magic Bilious Powders. THIS PREPARATION is the discovery of the Rev. J. W. Poland, formerly the Pastor of the Baptist Church in Goffstown, N. H., and a man dearly beloved by that denomination throughout New England. He was obliged to leave the pulpit and study medicine to save his own life, and his Magic Bilious Powders are one of the most wonderful discoveries of modern times. It is THE GREAT LIVER AND BILIOUS REMEDY!

Which completely throws in the shade all other discoveries in medicine; and it affords him much gratification that they receive the unanimous approbation of all who have used them. The Magic Bilious Powders are a Positive Cure for Liver Complaint! In its most aggravated form, and an immediate corrector of all BILIOUS DERANGEMENTS! Excellent for HEADACHE, CONSTIPATION, RHEUMATISM, A RAILROAD SICK, DROWSINESS, DIZZINESS, HEARTBURN, PALPITATION, And a most Wonderful Cure and Preventative of Fever and Ague!

(We advise all who are troubled with this fearful malady to always keep the Powders on hand ready for immediate use.) Here are a few important particulars: 1st.—They are the Great Specific for all Bilious Affections. 2d.—They are the only known remedy that will cure Liver Complaint. 3d.—They are the only known remedy that will cure Constipation. 4th.—The Powders are so thorough in their operation that one package will be all that the majority of those using them will require to effect a cure. 5th.—They are a mild and pleasant yet the most effectual cathartic known. 6th.—They are the cheapest and best medicine extant, as they can be sent by mail to any part of the globe for the price, 50 cents.

FARM FOR SALE. I WISH TO SELL THE FARM on which I reside, situated in Shelby county, on the turnpike road leading from Shelbyville to Smithfield, containing FIVE HUNDRED AND FORTY ACRES, Backus creek runs through same, cutting off about 160 acres on the west side, which has a comfortable house with nine rooms and all necessary out buildings. The balance on the east side, contains about 380 acres, with good improvements, consisting of a new brick house with nine rooms and all necessary out buildings. The whole farm is enclosed and set in grass, except that in cultivation. I will divide or sell altogether, or to suit purchasers. Those wishing to examine the farm, will call upon the subscriber on the premises. ROBERT DOAK, September 19, 1866.

Two Fine Shelby County Farms for Sale. THESE Farms adjoin each other, and will be sold so that the one shall contain either one or two hundred acres, and the other either two or three hundred acres, and seventy-nine acres, as the purchaser may choose. Both Farms are well improved, with plenty of good water, timber and grass. They lie in the Northern edge of the county, about two miles from the line of the Louisville & Cincinnati Railroad, and about the same distance West of the Shelbyville and Smithfield Turnpike. Distance from Louisville, twenty-two miles. Neighborhood good, and schools and churches abound. The subscribers may be seen, and terms known, by a visit to the premises. JAMES WRIGHT, M. W. OGLESBY, Oct 3-2m.

"God Bless You, Sir."

Collected in one of the principal hotels of this city, a few nights since, were a dozen or more gentlemen. Among them were officers in blue, and several late "rebels" and Confederates, who had swapped their suits of grey for something more mottled. A female, whose features, wan, and pinched, and pale, comported well with her thin garments and scanty shawls, entered the sitting room. Above the tobacco smoke wreathed a rainbow about her bowed and chastened head, and around her, the voices of men arose in ceaseless chorus. A close attendant at her side was a small, pale boy of six or seven years, whose bearing and garments disclosed at once the struggle between pride and poverty. "Please, sir," said the woman, presenting a small document to a gentleman, "read this." The gentleman took the paper, pausing in the puff of his cigar, and carefully, with the air of a man who has something else to think about, replied, "I've nothing for you, madam." Alas! for stifled charity, the man didn't read it! It was the story of a husband's heroism; how struggling up the heights of Malvern Hill, struck, and fallen, lost in the battle charge and smoke, he died and was buried in the common graves of thousands.

Slowly, sorrowfully and almost tearfully, the woman passed the round of that heartless coterie of gossamer, noisy group of men, met by the same response, "woman, I've nothing for you."

At last, when hope despairing, shut its outstretched wings, the widow approached the seat of a gentleman, whose garments betrayed him as one who had fought and suffered for the great principle now lost and buried. Calmly his eye ran over the document; slowly, and without ostentatious show or flourish, his hand descended into the depths of his pocket, and the kind words came right up from his Southern heart. "Here, take that. It is all I have." It was a five dollar bill! The woman, astounded kept the cry of gratitude shut up in her heart, but her lips, quivering, uttered the almost incoherent words—"God bless you, sir," and the hotel door closed harshly, with a clang, upon the heels of the widow and fatherless boy. "God bless you, sir!" We would not give the worth of that expression for all the dross of gold that this world affords. "God bless you, sir!" We would rather take that than a check for one thousand dollars on the Exchange National Bank. "God bless you, sir!" We hear it sounding now, and like an unseen hand, "that blesses unknown, the blessings invoked will rest upon the head of that unknown man; even at the hour when death comes and eternity bursts upon the spirit-view, will be heard that voice, "God bless you, sir!"—[Norfolk Virginian.]

A True Incident.

A few weeks ago two ladies, awaiting conveyance to the car, met in the parlor of a hotel a Lenox, Massachusetts. They were strangers to each other. One was from this city; the other from Staten Island, New York. Both were clad in deep mourning, and it was very evident that those garments of woe covered broken hearts that beat resolutely. Each felt strangely drawn toward the other by a sympathy of kindred sorrow, and, after repeatedly exchanging kindly, tender looks, the New York lady addressed the other: "You, too, journey this morning?"

"Yes, we have a long journey before us."

"How far do you go?"

"To St. Louis. We reside there."

"You Missourians must have had a sad experience during the war. I felt for you, I assure you."

"Indeed, madam, no one can tell what many of us have gone through."

"Did you sympathize with the Southern people?"

"Yes, madam; for I am a native of Missouri, and I knew the sufferings of the people in the seceded States; and, more than all, my son, my only child, was a Confederate soldier and was killed."

"And I, too, my friend, lost my only son in the Federal army."

And with that the mother of the Union soldier arose, crossed the room, grasped the hand and kissed the cheek of the mother of the Confederate brave, saying as she did so, "Your son and mine laid down their lives, each convinced that he was doing his duty."

This incident is strictly true. That noble Confederate boy was impressively dear to the writer of these lines. God bless that New York woman whose tears for her own dead so lovingly mingled with those of the mother of her son's slain enemy. The war is over; the children arrayed against each other are killed; their mothers are at peace.—Missouri Presbyterian.

A capital story is told of a young fellow who on one Sunday strolled into a village church, and during the service was electrified and gratified by the sparkling of a pair of eyes which were riveted upon his face. After the service, he saw the possessor of the shining orbs leave the church alone, and emboldened by her glances, he ventured to follow her, his heart aching with rapture. He saw her look behind, and fancied she evinced some emotion at recognizing him. He then quickened his pace, and she actually slackened hers, as if to let him come up with her—but he will permit the young gentleman to tell the rest in his own way: "Noble young creature!" thought I, "her artless and warm heart is superior to the hand of custom."

I had reached within a stone's throw of her. She suddenly halted and turned her face toward me. My heart swelled to bursting. I reached the spot where she stood; she began to speak, and I took off my hat, as if doing reverence to an angel. "Are you a pedler?"

"No, my dear girl, that is not my occupation."

"Well, I don't know," continued she, not very bashfully, and eying me very sternly; "I thought when I saw you in the meeting-house that you looked like a pedler who passed off a pewter half-dollar on me three weeks ago, and so I determined to keep an eye on you. Brother John has got home now, and says if he catches the fellow he'll wring his neck for him; and sin's sure but you're the good-for-nothing rascal, after all!"

The Lost Opportunity.

The New York Evening Post (Republican) reviews with regret the lost opportunity of a great career, open to the Republican party at the close of the war. It says: "It was the duty and policy of the Republican leaders to show that if in war they knew how to use with effect the enormous power of the Central Government, in peace they were equally ready to establish as quickly as possible that local self-government on which, as the balance-wheel in our political system, our true and safe progress in liberty depends. As the party in power, during the war they had been compelled to use force to an unlimited extent; it was the more necessary that on the restoration of peace they should show a readiness to return at once to strict constitutional forms, practices and limitations."

The Post then, in a style which reminds us of the old Declaration of Independence, sketches the career and crimes of the party with which it has been connected in terms no less caustic than truthful. Need we say what is the inevitable and approaching end of a party whose chief and best advocate in the first city of the Union is compelled by a sense of truth to speak truth to its associates. The Post says: But the policy imposed upon the party by those men who unhappily have seized the leadership of it has just been the contrary of this. Their whole political theory and practice tend dangerously toward a consolidation of all power and authority in the hands of the Central Government. They have aimed to leave nothing to the States, nothing to the Local Government, which is our greatest safeguard against despotism. They will make of the Federal Government, if they have their way, as overshadowing and all-devouring a monster as the Government of Napoleon is in France. They proceed upon the principle that Congress is to legislate upon all matters whatever; it is to interfere in all the relations of society and life, and to establish rules and laws for every event under heaven. Not only do we see a useless and absurd Bureau of Agriculture established, at an expense of hundreds of thousands of dollars per annum, to prepare reports which are published three years after date, and which, when they are fresh, have not half the value of a good agricultural paper; and to distribute seed to farmers who are quite intelligent enough to buy them; but bureaus of education, of mining, of insurance, of statistics, are proposed and urged. This patronage is increased, office-holders grow more numerous, the nation is more and more heavily taxed to support crowds of hungry idlers—the creatures of Congress and of the President, the political agents of those who appoint them, corrupting the morals of the nation and robbing its industry. This is not all. In pursuance of the same false and perilous theory of consolidation these men seek to make the General Government the patron and support of all manner of enterprise and schemes. Not only are steamship lines and other private undertakings subsidized; not only are certain branches of manufacture selected as the objects of special favoritism at the expense of the general public, and to the impoverishment of the Treasury; the evil extends much further. If a mining company need capital, Congress at once makes a grant of public lands; if another set of speculators appeal for land to plant trees—which Mr. Bayard Taylor informs the Tribune nature does much better—Congress hastens to do their bidding. How perilous such a policy is we may see by reviewing the huge steps already taken on this downward road.

The President has done his utmost to check the attempts of Congress to concentrate and centralize all power in Washington. With all his mistakes in other respects, he has shown a true and statesmanlike comprehension of this danger; he made haste to put out of his own hands all extraordinary power and patronage growing out of the war; he has, by his vetoes, prevented the consummation of some most mischievous measures. But the centralizers have not heeded his warnings, and it is high time for the country to awake to the dangers of their course. Already we see this false policy bearing fruit. If a citizen now-a-days suffers wrong, he no longer appeals to the laws—he turns to the Central Government to protect him. The Civil Rights act has been several months in force, but instead of requiring those who used it to set the courts in motion, Congress continues the Freedmen's Bureau in operation another year. Thus, by steps which are no longer imperceptible, the citizens are trained to undervalue and disregard the laws, and to cast all the responsibilities of life from their own shoulders upon that of the Central Government. That road leads as surely to ruin as the one called "secession," which has frightened so many inconsiderate people from the safe middle path. We have no fear but that the country will see and escape one danger as well as it did the other; but in doing so it will drop the men who are leading it into unsafe paths. If the Republican party chooses to go with those men, it goes straight toward ruin; it will lose inevitably the best part of its followers, nor will it need a Tribune to read these out of the party. The country is now at peace; the condition of affairs is such that men need no longer get aside all other interests to unite upon a single point. Slavery has gone down, rebellion has been crushed, and American citizens may once more turn their attention to other and equally important questions. It is a mistake to suppose that any party can now rule by the state cry that the Union is in danger from either slavery or rebellion.

LEGAL PRINTING.—We heartily agree with the papers of the State in favoring the adoption of laws by the Legislature compelling legal advertising in the county paper. This is proper and necessary. Other States have done so, yet Kentucky stands out in the old foggy mode of a little scribbled paper advertisement stuck up on the Court-house, and probably not more than ten men in the county ever see it. A gentleman told us the other day he came near losing $1,400 by not seeing a Commissioner's notice. A man must ride twenty miles every week to look at the court-house door for notices. The people demand it, and it is but just to the press that it should be adopted here as in other States. Illinois publishers called a convention and forced the attention of the Legislature to it and the adoption of laws favoring it. Let the printing interest of the State meet after the Convention of the 8th of January (should it be determined to hold it then), and have this matter laid before the Legislature. If the press is not entitled to this small boon verily it has spent its energies for small profit. This ought to be accomplished, and the press is at fault if it is not. Let them speak out and it will be done this winter.—Uniontown Appeal.

Do your duty at all times and let the world talk as it pleases.

Sets of Studs, Vest and Neck Chains, Plain and Chased Gold Chains, &c., &c., valued at 1 000,000, FOR ONE DOLLAR

Which they need not pay until it is known what is drawn and its value.

THE AMERICAN JEWELERS' ASSOCIATION calls your attention to the fact of the being the largest and most popular Jewelry Association in the United States. The business is and always has been conducted in the most candid and honorable manner. Our rapidly increasing trade is a sure guarantee of the appreciation of our patrons for this method of obtaining rich, elegant and easily worn. The sudden stagnation of trade in Europe, owing to the German War and recent disastrous financial crisis in England, has caused the failure of a large number of Jewelry Houses in London and Paris, obliging them to sell their goods at a great sacrifice, in some instances less than one-third the cost of manufacturing. We have lately purchased very largely of these Bankrupt Goods, at such extremely low prices, that we are able to send away finer Goods, and give better chances to draw the most valuable prices than any other establishment doing a similar business. OUR AIM IS TO PLEASE, and we respectfully solicit your patronage, as we are confident of giving the utmost satisfaction. During the past year we have forwarded a number of the most valuable prizes to all parts of the country. Those who patronize us will receive the full value of their money as no article on our list is worthless (the one Dollar, retail, and there are no blanks. Parties dealing with us may depend on having prompt returns, and the article drawn will be immediately sent to any address by return mail or express.

The following prizes have recently drawn valuable prizes from the American Jewelers' Association, and have kindly allowed the use of their names:

Charles J. Hunter, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C., Pins, value $200; Miss Anna G. Yates, 52 St. Mark's Place, N. Y., Sewing Machine, value $75; Brig. Gen. L. L. Hanson, T. N. Yole, Nashville, Tenn., Silver Tea Set, value $150; Miss Eliza Hunter, 63 Front St., Harrisburg, Pa., Sewing Machine, value $60; Lieut. Col. Agents Wanted Everywhere.

Unequalled inducements offered to Ladies and Gentlemen who will act as such. Our descriptive circular will be sent on application.

Distributions are made in the following manner: Certificates naming each article and its value are placed in sealed envelopes, which are well mixed. One of these envelopes containing the Certificate or Order for some article, will be delivered at our office, or sent by mail to any address, without regard to choice, on receipt of 25 cents.

On receiving the Certificate the purchaser will see what article it draws and its value, and can then send One Dollar and receive the article named or can choose any other article on our list of the same value.

Purchasers of our Sealed Envelopes may, in this manner, obtain an article worth from one to five hundred dollars.

Long Letters are unnecessary. Have the kindness to write plain directions, and if showing different articles from those drawn, mention the style desired.

* * * Orders for SEALED ENVELOPES must in every case be accompanied with the cash, with the name of the person sending, and Town, County and State plainly written.

Letters should be addressed to the Managers, as follows: SHERMAN, WATSON & CO., 37 & 39 Nassau St., New York City.
